Watch Charas In Movie on PC Full.Of Mice and Men and Ms. Magazine Writer Overwhelmed by Faith Issue PageRank #1 Tuesday, March 28, 2018 I was playing all over the place on Saturday for the opening of the Young Arkansas Writers Conference. In fact, I did a lot of play. Reached out to far too many people I thought would like to attend and had to come up with some excuse why I couldn't attend. Got my second annual public service award in the mail yesterday and couldn't accept it because the parameters of a public service award are far from the accurately defined as I would have liked. Good thing I have no plans to retire before I die. One good thing I did get to attend was the Young Arkansas Writers Conference.

While the topic might be writers and agents, I left there with more friends than I would ever have expected. Some of them would have gone there just to meet me. You probably heard of the conference. It was on the Disney National Theme Park Complex (which by the way I would like to visit one day before I died) and it had to do with the theme of faith in writing. I loved the conference so much I volunteered to be one of the hosts as I am booked next year. There were about 150 people there, which for me was wonderful. I always feel more comfortable when the number of people is smaller. I can relax more and not worry about making a fool of myself when talking to people. There wasn't too much talk. Just too much to do. But that's how it should be. The first thing I did after being in the throne room was to go up to the platform. The speakers were on it. The awards were on a table behind them. I liked the stage already. More than a little. I'm not sure who starts the conference but when they started they started very much d0c515b9f4
